LAUGH THIS OFF

Here's a meaty fact for the opponents of the sales tax in this county to digest and bear in mind when they go to the polls and vote on the measure that seeks the abolition of this form of tax—Contra Costa county has received from the state more than twice the amount paid by residents of this area.

A report just issued by the State Board of Equalization shows that since June 30th of last year we received $2,327,398 for school purposes and $1,711,214 for welfare, and we paid out of our pockets only half of that amount through the sales tax.

The people who rant and rail against the sales tax seem to forget that if this source of revenue is abolished some other form must be found to replenish the state exchequer. And if this situation is forced upon the state it is very likely that a tax that will hurt will be imposed. In addition it is likely to fall upon those who are raising the

Margett In Defense Of Indictments

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1—UP—Edward J. Margett, Northern California Townsend plan manager, today defended Congressional charges that three indictments were returned against him in Seattle 21 years ago.

"Nothing out of him was a 'kid of 19' at the time, Margett, in a press statement, said the indictments were 'primarily of a political nature' and untrue.

The indictments, including charges of grand larceny and accepting money from a prostitute, were voted because of a political feud in which the police department at that time was involved, Margett said. He was then secretary of the Seattle police chief.

He declared there was no more truth in the charges than in previous Congressional inferences he received more than $1500 monthly for his present work.

The first two charges of grand larceny were dismissed without trial and the third I answered myself without benefit of counsel, Margett said. "The case of extortion was discharged."

Margett attacked previous "comment" concerning him in Washington during the course of the investigation into the Old Age Revolving Pensions, Ltd., as untrue. He said his purpose in answering the Congressional charges was to present his side of the case to Townsend supporters throughout the country.

Labor Council Opposes Civil Service Plans

A resolution opposing civil service tenure for any elective office was adopted last evening when the Contra Costa Central Trades and Labor Council held its meeting at Hodges. The resolution was adopted almost unanimously.

James Christensen of Richmond was elected and installed vice-president of the Council and Jack Faulkner was named organizer.

At a meeting at which time a lecture of interest to all organized labor will be given will be held in the near future. There will be motion pictures and door prizes. Date for the event will be announced later.

G. G. McClung and George H. Weiss were elected delegates to attend a Sacramento convention on April 18, at which time means of replacing the criminal syndicalism act will be discussed.

Transportation Is No. 1 Problem For City Of Richmond

Richmond's determination to improve its transportation facilities, particularly its connection with San Francisco over the new bridge, was voiced last night through the Transportation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. Under the chairmanship of Fred Newsom the group met at the Chamber offices and discussed all phases of the problem without reaching any conclusion or committing themselves to any particular plan.

Safety Council Ad Campaign Is Studied At Meet

An advertising plan was approved by the board of directors of the Richmond Traffic Safety Council at a meeting held at the city hall last evening. T. C. Gray presided.

Wynn Hoskins of the Richmond Poster Advertising Co. presented the plan, which included two-way signs to be sponsored by service clubs, industries and other organizations.

According to the report made last evening the association now has more than 400 members.

More active participation of members in activities were discussed and means were studied to bring it about. Work in traffic safety for the coming months was discussed, particularly in legislation tending to greater safety in driving.

CARS COLLIDE

Machines driven by H. E. Anderson, 217 Carmel street, El Cerrito, and Bernard Haugner of Berkeley were involved in a minor automobile accident yesterday afternoon at South Forty-seventh street and Potrero avenue. No one was injured, and damage was very slight.

PEOPLE MOVE AWAY

"This is unquestionably Richmond's No. 1 problem," said Newsom. "I personally know many specific instances where people have gone to live in Albany or Berkeley because of our transportation handicap. We must have a unified system which will place us on an equality with the other east bay cities as regards a connection with San Francisco over the new bridge. Population is being forced in our general direction as demonstrated by the growth of the hill district through which Arlington avenue runs. Richmond has all the advantages as a residence center that are offered by other communities, but we will never get the population unless we have proper and adequate transportation."

He produced figures to show that Richmond has only 150 commuters to San Francisco, about one half of one per cent of the total of east bay commuters, whereas Richmond's population is seven per cent of the east bay total.

P. M. Sanford, president of the chamber, said he made an investigation some time ago to learn why more of the men employed in Richmond did not live here, and learned that lack of transportation to other cities accounted for it.

EXONERATION OF SHERIFF FORECASTED

MARTINEZ, April 1—The law enforcement committee of the Petrizetti grand jury held a session here this evening that lasted until midnight, in which the time was devoted to perusing reports that had been submitted to them by Melvin Myatt, investigator of the district attorney's office on what took place the night that the alleged big party was held at the county jail. The charge was made that male and female prisoners had a boisterous time, and as a result the federal government has withdrawn all of their prisoners from the Contra Costa county jail.

The statements scanned were from prisoners who were in the jail at the time, and it is said they went into minute details as to what purportedly took place that evening.

REFUSE STATEMENT

At the conclusion of the session, the members of the committee refused to give out any statement, but it is learned on the basis of authority that former deputies in the sheriff's office, Hercules Logan and Elmer Short, who now stand under suspension by Sheriff John

HAUPTMANN EXECUTION DATE IS SET

TRENTON, N. J., April 1—

UP—The hour of death—8 P. M. Friday—was appointed again for Bruno Richard Hauptmann tonight, but there was a fair chance that his incredible luck would hold and that he would live through the summer.

His clipped skull still gleaming from the haircut he got in preparation for the electric chair Hauptmann slept past 10 o'clock this morning and ate a substantial breakfast.

JURY TO MEET

AT 8 A. M. tomorrow, the Mercer county grand jury resumes its deliberations on the case of Paul H. Wenger, disbarred attorney, who confessed the Lindbergh murder and then repudiated it. All Het Up Over Loaves And Fishes

MARTINEZ, April 1—The members of the Democratic County Central Committee were on the war path at their meeting held here this evening. The squabble was over the handling of federal patronage in this county, and the fact that no attention is paid to their recommendations.

Practically all of the members present were of one opinion that there had to be showdown in the matter, and it was decided that this would take place on the night of May 9th.

Invitations have been extended to parties who have been doing out patronage, who are not members of the committee, and this is what strengthens objection is being made to.

Statements were made during the session that if the committee is to handle the campaign in the county and do the work, they should have something to say as to who shall receive the "loaves and fishes".

The squabble over the postmaster ship at Walnut Creek was settled so far as the committee is concerned. It endorsed Harry Hoffman, and immediately wired U. S. Senator W. G. McAdoo and Postmaster General James Farley, asking that he be

OAKLAND OAKS BEAT ANGELS; SAGE IN WIN

(By UNITED PRESS)

Billy Meyers' Oakland A's and Willie Kamm's San Francisco Missions scored along in co-ownership of first place in Pacific Coast League standings Wednesday night, boasting double victories in as many starts this week.

The Oaks fanned Los Angeles, 7-2, while the Missions downed Max Bishop's Portland Beavers 12-9 in a slugfest.

Five runs in the sixth inning when the Oaks bunched five hits and two walks—and the Angels contributed an error—gave the Meyers' squad their second win over the Angels. Fern Bell, Glynn and Bol-yard were the "big sticks" in Oakland batting.

Portland out-hit the Missions but couldn't put them together when it counted. Four errors further creased the skid.

The still surprising Sacramento "chain-core Cardinals" swamped Lefty O'Douls so-so Seals, 11 to 3, pushing over eight runs in a hectic sixth inning and grabbing 15 hits in all of Stutz and Grant.

At San Diego the former Hollywood Stars, now the Padres, banged out 17 hits of Craghead, Lucas, Pickrell and McDougall to win 10 to 5 from Seattle.

The line scores:

Missions—12 16 2

FOX PLANNING EXTRA SHOW OF FOLLOW FLEET

Because of the importance of the tremendous program opening at the Fox theater today an extra performance will be held in the evening when the theater will start its first show at 6:30 P. M. The regular matinee performance will start at 1:15 P. M. as usual.

"Follow the Fleet" and "The Preview Murder Mystery" are the two features which make this extra special starting time at night necessary.

It is said that a sailor has a sweetheart in every port, even his love leaves a sailor the whole world loves to dance, music has charms, and all that sort of caviar. So much romance and living feet come into the Fox theater today with "Follow the Fleet" and "The Preview Murder Mystery" which are the two successful plays plus a variety of musicals.

The sparkling musical is adapted from two New York stage hits, "The Boat" and "Shore Leave". It has everything that charms from the two successful plays plus a variety of musicals.

The picture is a level of gaiety and so slightly dances, women after by romance and fun. As the show starts with New Irving Berlin's "Follow the Fleet" and "The Preview Murder Mystery" which are the two successful plays plus a variety of musicals.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Dr. Hans Luther, rotund, serious-minded Ambassador of Germany, was visiting R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Moore has a delicious sense of humor, which he conceals under a very grave mien.

Referring to Hitler's reputation of the Rhinehind, he said to Ambassador Luther: "That 'chancellor of yours is certainly' raising hell in Europe."

"Mr. Secretary," replied the German Ambassador, not catching the twinkle in Moore's eye, "I am afraid I cannot refer to anything derogatory to my Chancellor."

"The hell you can't," shot back Moore. "You sit right there and listen to me."

"Mr. Secretary," replied Luther, in almost a plaintive voice, "Chancellor Hitler is a very fine man, one of the finest leaders Germany has ever had. If you must persist in discussing him in those terms, I must ask you to excuse me."

"NOT!" Dr. Luther, himself, once Ambassador of Germany, also Minister of Finance, was hoist by his own petard.

A swimming pool is the central theme of the undertaking. According to her plans, it will be like no other swimming pool and, consequently, the surrounding summer resort will be like no other vacation spot.

In the first place, the pool is going to have surf and breakers. That might sound impossible to the unwary, but to Hollywood nothing is impossible.

The rating seas will be simulated by a mechanical gadget that creates waves and combers in many sea pictures.

In addition to the waves and breakers, swimmers will have, at their disposal the type of wind or breeze they most desire. Any type will be produced by a studio wind machine.

"The wind machine," explains Glenda, "will have an electric heater attached. So there will be warm or cool breezes available. It's all done with electricity."

"I got the idea from a beauty parlor. The hair-drying blowers which can be turned hot or cold suggested the machine which is to be made for my swimming pool."

The tennis court planned as part of the "Ferrell Summer Resort" also is going to be something different.

"The court will be paved with cement," says the actress, "and will be lighted for evening play. On one side will be a small, enclosed grandstand, equipped with dressing rooms and fitted with a small service bar."

The umpire's stand is going to be a distinctive little coming tower. I think I will have the contractor equip it with a winding staircase and I know there is going to be an electric clock in the tower."

HOLLYWOOD, April 1.—(AP)—Glenda Farrell has decided to take her vacation at home this year, so she is spending her vacation money constructing a summer resort in her own back yard.

A swimming pool is the central theme of the undertaking. According to her plans, it will be like no other swimming pool and, consequently, the surrounding summer resort will be like no other vacation spot.

In the first place, the pool is going to have surf and breakers. That might sound impossible to the unwary, but to Hollywood nothing is impossible.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, April 1.—Strike-breakers used in the recent election rumpus are using a Fifth Avenue employment agency for non-payment of salaries. They should go on strike—Dorothy Mackall, who hasn't been around in the movies for some time, is using Manhattan as her stage. She creates her sensations by wearing some new ultra-tailored gown every time she makes an entrance in a fashionable hotel dining room—Toscanini celebrated his sixty-ninth birthday last week by conducting a Philharmonic concert as usual. Apparently he's forgotten that there are rests even in music. The Philharmonic, by the way, won't have its summer season at the Lewisohn stadium unless it raises a $75,000 guarantee fund beforehand. Things are shaky in the local orchestral field. The Federal Theater Project of the WPA woke up the other day to find a hit on its hands. It's T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral," which is playing to SRO signs at the Manhattan theater. The government doesn't quite know what to do with the profit. It was Andre Malraux who once said: "When you become used to never being alone, you may consider yourself Americanized." He must have been in New York when he thought that one.

TENSE Robert Milton, the producer, was passing the liquor shop in the Rarapack and Tenais building on Park Avenue the other afternoon, when a bottle of champagne on display in the window caught his attention. He glanced at the price, which read "one twenty-five."

Mr. Milton stropped into the store and told the salesman he'd like half a dozen bottles of the champagne in the window. At this there was great commotion. Clerks whispered to each other, and the proprietor came forward, bowing and smiling.

"Wouldn't you like to look at the bottles before we wrap them up?" he asked.

"No, that's all right," said Milton. "I saw them in the window."

The clerk's jaw dropped.

"You said six bottles, sir. The price is $125 a bottle."

"The Morals of Marcus" was adapted by Guy Bolton and Miles Mander, with additional dialogue by H. Fowler Mear. Miles Mander also directed the picture, which was produced by Julius Haken for Real Art Productions Ltd.

Love Shy

by Nelly Graf
 (AUTHOR OF "GIRLS WITHOUT MEN")

Marianne Minear lives on the wrong side of the little town of Centerville. She realizes this when her high-school sweetheart deserts her for a girl who is well-to-do and socially prominent. That's how she feels, because, she says, a girl without money hasn't a chance in a small town, runs away with her employer, a married man. Embittered, Marianne becomes convinced that love is cruel, and money everything. She gets a job in New York with a real-estate firm, and advances rapidly by Leonard Bailey, in the same office, is in love with her, but he is poor, and money is now her object in life. When Harv Deslie, a middle-aged bachelor, asks her to marry him, she accepts, but cannot get Leonard out of her thoughts. Then, one day, she finds Eve, in a menial job in a shop. She has difficulty in persuading her to come home with her.

CHAPTER XXIII

AS MARIANNE pondered over the perplexing problem of how to appeal to Eve, the answer came suddenly—crystal clear.

"I know, Eve—I have it!" she said. "I know what you can do."

"What do you mean?" Eve asked uncertainly.

"I have a friend, Leonard Bailey. He and a Doctor Lawson are going to open a hospital for crippled children in the country. They won't be able to pay their staff much, but board and room will be included. You've always liked children, and there would be an opportunity of doing a lot of good."

"Marianne! Do you suppose, they would consider me?"

"I'll speak to Leonard about it. I don't know Dr. Lawson, but I've talked to him over the phone. He seems awfully nice."

"And you'll let me know? If I could only get something like this!"

"I'm sure I can get Leonard to take you on Eve. But I think you need a good rest first. You look so pale and thin. Eve, you must come home with me! Give up your job here and come home and let Mother and me take care of you for a while. Call your boss in here right now, and tell her you're leaving."

EVE STARTED to protest, but her employer came in just then and stared at the two girls speculatively.

"There's quite a lot of work to be done, Eve," she began.

"The Marianne interrupted her sister. Marianne, Eve's sister, had produced one of her business cards, explaining her original purpose in coming to the shop.

Marianne noticed that Eve was trembling, as she put on her shabby coat and hat.

"You're sure—sure, Marianne, that Mother wants to see me?" she asked, as they left the shop.

"Just wait and see!" Marianne smiled her assurance.

THEY WERE silent for a while after that. Then Eve said: "Why was that Mrs. Jamison was saying about your marrying 'some one'?"

"I'm engaged," Marianne answered to Harv Deslie.

"She helped out her hand with its enormous diamond."

"Oh Marianne! It's gorgeous! He must be rich to buy a stone like that!"

Marianne turned from her work in the kitchen as Marianne entered alone.

"Marianne! Home at this hour! You're not sick, are you? I've wonderful news! It's about Eve!"

The door opened then, and Eve stood on the threshold.

"Mother!"

Mrs. Minear tottered and would have fallen if Eve and Marianne had not caught her.

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome

Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant.

Either because of stomach diet, "acids," food fermentation, or the wearing of tight teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). No wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of tiny bits of food on mouth, teeth, or dental plate surfaces.

He said six milkers came to his home to tell him they had been threatened with death if they failed to join the union by the same men. The alleged unionists also cut belts on milking machines.

ACHE IN BACK OF HEAD AND NECK

Many of my readers write that they are troubled by a nagging ache in the base of the brain which often extends downward and includes the back of the neck. The ache is generally of a "drawing" type and is more of a dull, annoying discomfort than a sharp pain.

Usually the patient also notes a sensation of tightness and sometimes the patient describes a throbbing sensation which is disturbing. If the fingers are pressed firmly on the back of the neck, a feeling of soreness may be noticed.

The unusual thing about this type of ache is that while the distress is located in the back of the neck and head, the actual cause is about two feet away in the lower part of the abdomen. The organs which are most likely to give rise to this particular kind of reflex ache are the generative organs and irritation or congestion in the pelvic region may show itself most clearly, not in the pelvis, but through the back of the head. Occasionally, the congestion results from prolapsed organs which induce a downward pressure after having sagged from their normal positions. When the large intestine is sluggish in itself of waste material, this may be sufficient to induce the discomfort in the back of the head which I am discussing today.

Or, the same symptom may arise as the result of continued poor posture which encourages a forward sagging of the head. When you are ready to hold a position where the head is carried bent over, this will be enough to cause tension in the supporting muscles, and ligaments at the top of the spine and forward the shoulders. If this is the cause then immediate relief will follow as soon as the head is carried properly.

Another cause of an aching sensation in this particular part is due to a slipping out of place of some of the small bones of the upper spine. When you find a sore spot when you press with your fingers along the cervical vertebrae, which are the seven vertebrae of the neck, then this will usually indicate an accumulation given by a doctor who understands and manipulates the spine. If one or two adjustments completely relieve you, you are sure you have found the reason for it.

In older patients, an ache in the base of the neck which is accompanied by a distinct grating or creaking sound when the head is turned, is possibly due to arthritis and this possibility should not be overlooked in making the diagnosis.

To correct that type of ache which centers in the back of the head and neck, it is first necessary in about 80 per cent of the cases, to turn the attention to returning the pelvis organs to normal functioning. I find that mild pelvic congestion will yield to the use of the hot Sitz bath, and in taking this bath, the patient sits in 9 inches of water as hot as he can bear, with only the hips and feet immersed. It is a good plan to remain in the Sitz bath for from 10 to 20 minutes. The bath may be taken 3 times a week, or daily, and is of value because it increases the blood circulation through the pelvis and thus lessens congestion.

The use of the short five day fast is often helpful in relieving the less severe pelvic troubles. All health-building measures will be of value in helping to overcome the annoying ache through the back of the head and the patient will find that in the average case, fresh air, a wholesome diet, relaxation, and vigorous walks, out of doors, are distinctly beneficial. When the aching sensation is the more severe pelvic involvement, the patient requires the direct supervision of a doctor who will prescribe a treatment to fit the individual case. When the ache is especially noticeable, any local treatment which helps the tensed muscles to relax will be helpful. Various heat treatments will then be of assistance.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Appendicitis in Child)
Question: Mrs. Bee B. asks: "I have been told my boy has an appendix. Would you advise an x-ray?"
Answer: Before making a diagnosis of chronic appendicitis in a child, a careful study of the case is necessary. The doctor in charge may request an x-ray examination. If he finds that a diagnosis is uncertain without it, I recommend that the child be kept in bed for a chronic appendicitis in children. I also advise, as of great value in the appendix is inflamed the white blood cells will usually be increased. The symptoms of appendicitis in children may closely resemble those of indigestion; also a severe chronic inflammation may exist although the symptoms are mild or easily overlooked. The child may have occasional attacks of nausea and vomiting, with or without pain in the abdomen. One of the reasons I strongly recommend regular health examinations for children is that a thorough examination will disclose the chronic appendicitis, thus establishing what is wrong.

(Urinary Arachnoid)

Question: Mrs. V. F. inquires: "What treatment is best for carcinoma of the urethra?"
Answer: No one treatment can be suggested to fit all cases. By a uric acid is present a small red growth occurring on the mucous membrane of the urethra usually located on the posterior wall. The growth is quite small but causes discomfort and is very sensitive. The treatment used must fit the case and may consist of removal with the electric cautery, or of cutting away the growth.

Amazing Abuse Accorded That Precious Bit of Mechanism—The Eye

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

I HAVE read somewhere "What curious workmanship is that of the eye, which is in the body as the sun in the world!" If that bit of workmanship in the body fails to function it is as great a calamity to the individual as if the sun itself were blotted out. Yet we take the most astonishing liberties with this precious bit of mechanism, overworking it, making it function under unfavorable conditions, neglecting it, and, in the end, seeing it when infection or disease threatens.

The reports from the public libraries that in recent years the circulation has grown almost beyond their capacity for service makes one wonder if that fact has meant more business for the eye doctors.

Least regular periodic examinations of eye conditions. Now, the women are knitting! Everywhere and all the time. In dim corners where meetings are held, on railroad trains, with the unavoidable swaying and jolting of the car forcing a constant need for re-focusing the vision. One thing seems hopeful to me. There is a glorious campaign being put on here of lighting engineers to persuade people to study their lighting equipment with a view to conserving the eyesight.

New Illumination

At the risk of being thought an accomplice of the electric lighting companies, I want to urge you to give careful consideration to the marked advance in the science of illumination. If there are not sufficient funds for any other sort of replacement in your home this spring, try at least to replace your reading lamps with the newly designed equipment.

This latter type of reading or student lamp provides for the proper length of light rays from point of focus. By a system of inverted shades the light is diffused into an illumination approaching normal daylight. The newer type of shade gives a much larger field of vision with a uniform intensity of lighting, which does away with shadows and half-shadows. These have a tendency to produce squinting or to result in eyestrain.

Seeing, according to engineers, is a partnership of vision and lighting. The real economy of physical welfare requires that the act of seeing should be accomplished with the minimum of effort and strain. This is made possible only when the field of vision is sufficiently clear and so properly lighted as to make the effort one of ease and normal muscular tension.

No doubt, generations ago, our eyes were meant for far vision. Certainly looking at objects placed a room's length or more away is less fatiguing than any sort of near vision. We have to accustom our eyes to the continued strain required in converting the sight to near points. Yet most of us spend hours daily at occupations which call for close use of the seeing machine.

A predominating influence in the process of seeing is the effect of light. This effect is measured not only by the amount of light but by the general surroundings—color, angle of reflection, and direction of light supply.

A Mere 20 Years

All these details have been the subject of intensive scientific research for a mere score of years, scarcely more than enough to cover the lifetime of the young student or office worker in our immediate times. Even a hasty consideration of the process of seeing shows us what a complex science it is, really involving a number of sciences.

We are told that up to the present we have secured only "threshold data." The daily press is full of tragic happenings due to defective eyesight or tardy sight perceptions. In order to see, we must have both nerve stimulation and co-ordinated nerve activity. Tomorrow let us consider what can happen to both of these functions.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "When eating food it is good manners to pick at the bones of a wing or leg—O. S."

ANSWER: At home, when dining in the company of the immediate family or with an intimate friend or two, one may, as a rule, pick up the wing or leg of fowl if he chooses. It is customary to ask permission to do this first. And, after the breach, when dining in a restaurant, however, or at a large gathering or with strangers, or at any formal function, one manages with knife and fork and gives up eating at the point where he might, in private, be tempted to pick up a bone with the finger.

Chinese Girl Faithful To Old Tradition

By TALBOT LAKE

MISS YUEN TSUNG SZE simply had to be the Honorable Reader. When the English translation of the Chinese classic, "Lady Precious Stream," was in rehearsal stage, Miss Sze, daughter of the Chinese Ambassador to the United States, said to herself: "That's for me." As the role turned out, it was.

Naive, according to Western standards? Well, so is the play. It's somewhat of a fairy tale about a princess, the youngest daughter of His Excellency Wang Yim, who renounces riches for poverty. But it happens that there isn't any scenery on the stage and the audience is expected to imagine the setting. Consequently someone has to tell the audience what to imagine and when.

In her role of Honorable Reader, Miss Sze does it. She opens the play and ends it. Her English is flawless, her voice pure. She has the poise of an American college girl who has been around—she's a Wesleyan graduate. But she also possesses that calm serenity of the Oriental in whose nature is the philosophy of thousands of years. She's rather slender of figure and has glossy black bangs.

Only Chinese in the cast. The play had to be done as nearly as possible as if produced in China. Now the Chinese never have anything on the stage and really the audience is part of the play. It has to think with the players.

"That's why I wanted the part. I wanted it to be as truly Chinese as could be. I came in two weeks before the first night and had to learn a great many lines in a hurry. But I did it."

Dr. Shih I. Hsiung, translator and director, is pleased with Miss Sze, though she took up her role as an untried amateur. She caught on to her lines so quickly and delivered them so easily that she is the Chinese tradition that she is one of the hits of the show.

Just now she insists there will be no stage career for her later. When "Lady Precious Stream" is through, so, she says, is she.

Then after a three clear rinses, roll them for a moment in a turkish towel, kneading them as you would dough. Unroll, and dry indoors in a good current of air and away from steam heat.

Exciting to Change Your Hair Styles!

By JACQUELINE HUNT

AFTER the mid-February round of parties most of us begin to feel a bit let-down—tired of winter, tired of stuffy dark frocks, of our coiffures, complexions and everything. It is just a bit early to indulge in an orgy of spring shopping, but there are several things that act as a pick-up to lagging spirits. None, however, as effective as a change of coiffure. There are times when women do not wish to look too different from the crowd, but right now you need feel no hesitation about expressing your individuality. Never has there been such a wide range of attractive coiffures. If you have always had a suppressed desire to wear your hair with a ribbon tied around it little-girl fashion, or to copy the hairdress of a past generation, go ahead and do it!

It is exciting to change the way you do your hair. You look in the mirror and see a new person with something more interesting about her.

Then you can experiment with your hair. You can make up to the height of the effect and the next time you go shopping for a new hat or new dress get something that will enhance the new you.

Right now there is a style to flatter every type. You can wear your hair any length from four inches to your waistline—if it will grow that long. You may wear it parted or part it in the middle, at the side or back. Wear it in curls, loose waves or straight if it pleases you. Wear bangs if you wish. You see lots of them. Brush your hair behind your ears if they are small and pretty, or hide them under ringlets when the mood strikes you.

There are a few don'ts to hamper you in your choice of a new hair arrangement. Don't slant your hair down across your forehead! It marks you as old-fashioned—and it hides the lovely lines of your face. Wearing your hair backward from your face emphasizes your best features and gives you a clean-cut, youthful look.

Don't choose a bushy coiffure or one that hides the natural lines of your head. Too fluffy, unshaped and unrestrained hair makes it nearly impossible for you to find a hat with becoming lines. If your face is thin or the lines of your cheeks have begun to sag, don't wear a little-girl coiffure with a ribbon band and low curls arranged to make your face look older and tired.

If your forehead is too high for real beauty, you can improve your appearance with softly curled or swirled bangs. Perfectly straight bangs are OK (unless you are the Oriental type with thick hair) and so are wild, kinky ones.

More about coiffures and hair in tomorrow's column!

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I want to know if cocoa butter is a good skin bleach for removing tan and sunburn. Tell me a good quick bleach for removing tan and sunburn without days and days of treatment." Miss L. O. S.

Cocoa butter is not a bleach. If smoothed on the skin before exposure to the sun and wind it will help prevent burning, however. Once you have become sunburned, you should treat your skin immediately with applications of olive oil to remove the inflammation. A slight tanning will follow but this will disappear after a few days if you remember to protect your skin with a sunproof cream or lotion and powder before you go out. Do not use anything stronger than lemon juice to hasten the bleaching—and do not use that while your skin is still pink and sensitive from a bad sunburn.

QUESTION: "I would like to know if you would tell me a way to rid my face of whiteheads and blackheads. I would like to wear my skin up before spring if possible. I will switch for an answer." R. E. H.

It is possible for you to clear up your skin in a month or so if you are really serious about doing so and do not leave your make-up on overnight occasionally. Use a bland soap and a complexion brush for cleansing. Once or twice a week, to speed up results, use one of the friction preparations that are especially good for the whitehead. There is a saw one on the market that gives surprising results even after the first using. The substance is worked into a foamy paste in the palm of your hand and then applied to the blemished areas and rinsed away.

Rice An Old Reliable Friend for Staple Dishes

By JUDITH WILSON

RICE can take its place at more than one meal and in more than one place because it is one of the most satisfying and versatile of the so-called "staple foods." Rice is suitable for a variety of meat accompaniments or a starry dessert. When used as a main dish you need only the addition of a green vegetable or salad and a dairy fruit dessert to make a perfectly balanced meal. Try some of these recipes and see how they fit into your meal patterns.

Rice Timbales
Wash ¾ cup rice then add gradually to a large quantity of rapidly boiling, salted water. Cook until tender, about 25 minutes, drain and rinse. Reheat slightly in a warm oven and pack lightly into hot buttered custard cups. In the meantime prepare a sauce from 1½ tablespoons butter, 1½ tablespoons flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, and a dash of pepper. ½ teaspoon dry mustard and 1½ cups grated cheese and stir until the cheese is melted. Season with a dash of cayenne if wanted. Turn out the rice and serve hot with the sauce. Serve warm.

Apple-Rice Meringue
Peel and quarter 6 apples. Put 1 cup sugar and 1½ cups water in a saucepan, add the apples and boil tender. Remove the apples and cook the syrup until thick. Put 1 cup washed rice into boiling water and cook until nearly tender. Then drain. Add 2 cups milk, ½ cup sugar, cinnamon to taste and cook slowly for half an hour or until the milk is absorbed. Put the rice around the sides of a dish, pile the apples in the center and pour the syrup over them. Whip the whites of 3 eggs until stiff, add 3 tablespoons powdered sugar and pile over the rice and apples. Sprinkle lightly with sugar and bake until light brown in the oven. Serve warm.

Curried Chicken with Rice
Cook the rice in rapidly boiling water until tender, drain, rinse with cool water and put in a warm oven until light and fluffy and each grain separate. In the meantime make a curry sauce as follows: Put ½ pound butter into a frying pan with 1 onion and 1 apple finely chopped and sauté until light brown. Stir in 2 teaspoons flour. Add stock from the cooking of the rice and bring to a boil. Then add ½ cup heavy cream and ¼ cup chicken stock. Arrange thin slices of white and dark chicken meat on a bed of rice and serve the sauce over it.

Rice Waffles
Sift together 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon sugar. Add the beaten yolks of 2 eggs that have been added to 1 cup milk. Beat until smooth and add 1 cup cold cooked rice and 4 tablespoons melted butter. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs; bake on hot waffle iron and serve at once. Topped with dark corn syrup or honey.

Rice Pudding
An old-fashioned rice pudding starts with uncooked rice. Wash 1½ cups rice and put into a pudding dish with 1 quart rich milk, a little

Mourning for King Affects World's Styles

By IRENE VAIL

New York—Fashion's reflection of world events must necessarily take account of the death of King George V. and the consequences of the nine months' period of mourning which the British nation observes as a result. It goes without saying that this dictum of wearing black for six months, and gray and lavender for the last three, will have considerable effect.

Englishwomen, particularly the fashionable ones, are present in style centers all over the world, and their insistent demands for black at smart dressmakers, as well as their appearance everywhere, would promise a trend for re-establishing the prestige of black, even at the moment when for the first time in nearly two decades it has lost something of its supremacy.

For the second period of mourning, when gray and lavender are correct, fashion prospects in terms of current plans are more satisfactory, since both these are prominent in the fashion program. France does well by her color, and it is to her more or less recent exploitation of African possessions that we may attribute many of our strangest looking hats. Now we give you the Martingale and, unless you are the type, baffling Agnes, who seems to be the high priestess of the order of stylizing native headresses, has done some ravishing things by turning cotton handkerchiefs, peculiar to the island, into hats. She ardently endorses cotton handkerchiefs in her new hat collection, these handkerchiefs being developed to look like a child's respect and youthfulness, and small brimmed shapes of big batiste square

MODERN WOMEN

High Rating Often Placed on Trifles Just Isn't Common Sense

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

RIGIDITY is never an attractive quality. It is much better to be pliable, to keep one's affairs in such order that they may be subject to change without greatly upsetting oneself or one's life.

The old method of up-bringing seems now to have made for inflexibility and a combative attitude toward life. The new method is quite the opposite. It tends to encourage an easier method of living to take things in our stride, as goes the phrase.

Seems like an improvement on the old order even though there is some danger of becoming a bit too casual about the things that really matter.

Without any assistance life itself teaches us to be adaptable. Each little thing that comes along wears one down.

So many women have their own particular system of housework, for example. When a maid comes into service the mistress immediately begins to drill into the maid her own ideas, which is not only extremely upsetting to the mistress but demoralizing to the maid.

Find the Objective

After all, it's the objective that is important. How it is attained really doesn't matter. The easiest way is sometimes the best, old ways to the contrary. To battle and struggle and fight in order to accomplish something which will be a little flexibility, could be accomplished in the same time and with considerably less loss of one's nervous energy, hardly is sensible.

Men are far more understanding about such things and are interested in results. How the results are obtained counts less to the good executive.

Woman's attention to detail, and her talent for it, have earned her an important place in the business world. But in her personal life especially she should be encouraged to adopt an easier method of living and to be helped away from her natural tendency to magnify trifles.

Trifling adventures in romance become great romances in the minds of women old and wise enough to know better than to place an exaggerated value upon them. Suppose that men magnified every little sentimental episode they indulged in with women. They would be inclined to consider them not only silly and vain but incapable of judging value and of seeing the relative importance of such matters as compared to the general scheme of life? Of course we women are not so stupid. We are capable of making major life affairs out of the most minor causes.

As life goes on it seems one suddenly has to fight harder and harder against becoming "in one's ways. Mental rigidity sets in as sure as menstrual cramps unless one exercises vigilance against it. This is especially true of those who live alone and who never have to consider the demands of others. A member of a large family gets invaluable training through being a little more than a selfish being and is better able to attain an easy, fluid manner of living because family plans are so often subject to change.

Natural Methods
Stubbornness and a blind adherence to prescribed notions and methods do not make for a smooth old age. Better begin now to give up forcing others to follow your own particular pattern. Let them work out their own method. It shouldn't surprise you if it proved better than the one you have been operating on. Yet even if it is the easiest or most natural method for the one who is responsible for the work, let him alone.

Women wear themselves out over trifles, often giving as much force and energy to a little inconsequential thing as to a really vital one. They are demoralized for wasting themselves over nothing.

Misdirected energy is worse than wasted, since it often over-emphasizes trifling occurrences and trifling relationships. Getting all burned up over trifles means that when one's nerves are needed they are too tired to respond—which, to sum up mildly, isn't common sense.

A Miller for the part they took in the affair have been subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury Friday night and give testimony.

REPORT PREPARED

As a result of the deliberations of the committee, it is understood that a report has been prepared that will be submitted to the grand body at the Friday night meeting and that it will contain the following recommendations:

First—That Sheriff John A. Miller was out of town the night of the party and is not subject to censure for what took place.

Second—That there was no liquor in the jail at any time.

Third—That the singing in the early part of the evening was not by the prisoners but by a church choir.

Fourth—That the loud singing later in the evening was by four occupants of an automobile parked in the street, and not by prisoners; or anyone connected with the sheriff's office.

Fifth—That in general jail conditions are bad on account of the size of the jail, for which the sheriff is not to blame.

Sixth—That the suspension of the two deputies be changed to a permanent discharge.

From Antioch the authorities received word that Mitchell and Mrs. Shannon were frequent visitors to taverns, where they drank together. George Pierce, owner of the Foreign Club at Antioch, said he knew the two well, and that they dropped in at least once a month.

State Senator Thomas McCann, president of the bank, said the cashier had been fully bonded and the position of the bank was fully protected by the deposit of Federal bonds to protect depositors.

When Mrs. Shannon came to her death $650 was found in her purse in currency.

Authorities said that witnesses told them that Mrs. Shannon had been in Antioch at 6 o'clock on the night of her death.

Damages Denied; Both Sides To Pay Own Costs

MARTINEZ, April 1.—Listening to testimony in the case all day yesterday, Superior Judge Thomas D. Johnston today had denied judgment to either party, in an action filed by Richard R. DeCamp against James Bell.

The Camp asked judgment of $5,250 for injuries to his knee and head he claimed he suffered in a collision at Ohio and Fourth streets, Richmond, on November 5, 1935.

Bell countered with a cross complaint asking for $5,250 for hurts he claimed he sustained.

The court ordered both sides to pay their own costs.

Attorney Harold Sawallisch of Richmond represented the plaintiff, while T. M. Carlson and R. V. Collins were attorneys for the defendant and cross complainant.

Bridge 76 Per Cent Complete

ALMOST 76 PERCENT complete at the end of March, construction on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge is being rapidly pushed with the probability that the world's largest bridge will be opened to automobile traffic in time for the Big Game in late November of this year. This latest aerial view of the 8-1/4 mile bridge shows the double deck structure of the twin suspension bridges of the West Bay crossing presenting a finished appearance save for the end sections and the floor steel. In the background of the picture is the 1400-foot cantilever span of the East Bay crossing which has just been closed.

And The Flood Receded

AND THIS is one of the conditions left near H. dley, Mass., between that community and Northampton. Here the terrific force of the raging Connecticut river not only washed out the roadbed but trees, driftwood and other debris helped to heave the steel bands of the railway into twisted junk. Telephone workmen lay emergency lines through the wreckage.

BARRIER TO GROWTH

"This transportation matter is definitely a barrier to our growth," he declared. "It must be remedied. The Chamber has the solid support of the community in its efforts to accomplish it. Once the problem is properly solved, Richmond is in an excellent position as regards the bay bridge. We will have a fast highway with only one stop between here and the bridge, and will easily make the trip in a private automobile or bus in 35 minutes."

DEMANDS EVEN BREAK

Mayor W. W. Scott said he sees a great influx of population to the east bay as soon as the bridge is open, but that transportation as it stands at present is a bar to local growth. He said there are many Southern Pacific trains each day and that the monthly commutation rate is $7.15 as compared with $6.50 from Albany, but that passengers must reach the station in their automobiles or pay a bus fare, which greatly increases the cost. He favored some system which would give Richmond an even break with other cities.

Among others at the meeting were Walter Trull, Santa Fe; E. L. Dyer, C. A. Veale, Garnett King and Glenn Collins, Southern Pacific; Perry Woodcock, East Bay Street Railways; Clark Birgar, Merchants' Association; and Reese Hays director of the Chamber of Commerce. Woodcock, representing W. P. St. Sure, vice president of the company, said a careful survey is being made, but that his company is not prepared to present a plan.

It was agreed that the matter shall be left open for further discussion, the committee not being committed to any plan or system of transportation. Further meetings will be held as rapidly as material develops, it was said.

holler and let others escape who should be bearing their share of government costs.

There is one thing that commands the sales tax, and that is it forces every man, woman and child who spends over a dime in a purchase, except for food, to become a revenue contributor. No one escapes, not even the stranger who tarries here to enjoy our climate and see the wonders of nature. He pays as well as the rest of us, and that is the way it should be. No resident either should be exempt from doing his part in sharing the tax burden, in a way that will make him conscious of government and excite an interest in him as to how his money is being spent—with lavish prodigality or according to the dictates of good business sense.

Death Row At San Quentin To Be Abolished

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, April 1.—UP—Indication that San Quentin's much-criticized "death row" may be abandoned was given credence today with removal of eight condemned men from the old cell block.

The men were taken from cells in which they were "doubled up" with other condemned men. An-the murder charge against Wendel. If the jurors report "no indictment" against Wendel, Hauptmann will die; if they indict him, his life may be spared for six months although no one was certain about that.

ALL IN CONFUSION

Attorney General David T. Wilentz walked down the State House corridor today, a cigar jutting out of his mouth, and said: "I am a very confused young man right now."

So was everyone else. Wilentz tried to bring order out of the confusion, by asking the grand jury if it would allow him to appear before it tomorrow, presumably to help straighten them out on puzzling phases of the Wendel case.

REQUESTS MADE

Wendel made the same request. He had the reputation of being a brilliant lawyer before he got into trouble with the law. His letter to the grand jury was couched in precise legal terms.

The grand jury recessed at 4:30 P. M.; after a day of routine investigation of other matters, and there was no immediate indication whether Wendel's request would be granted.

John Kafes, Wendel's lawyer, said tonight that the Federal Department of Justice was investigating the story he told about being kidnapped in New York by three men who forced him, at the point of a gun, to confess the Lindbergh murder. Wilentz and Kafes believe there is no question that Wendel was illegally detained. The local office of the Department of Justice's Bureau of Investigation refused to comment on the report that they were investigating, but indicated no intensive effort was being made by them.

BRUND IS CONFIDENT

TRENTON, N. J., April 1.—UP—Anna Hauptmann's husband told her today that they had reached the "turning point" in their two years of agony since he was charged with the Lindbergh crime. He said it, she said, as if he were determined to believe it true, and Mrs. Hauptmann, hurrying away from his death house cell, wept. As they faced each other through the screen placed before Hauptmann's cell both clung to the hope that the Mercer county grand jury would yet uncover evidence which would further delay or prevent the execution.

Both Mrs. Hauptmann and her husband still were shaken and nervous today.

SUSPECT GRILLED

TRENTON, N. J., April 1.—UP—Paul H. Wendel, Sr., disbarred attorney, tonight told his story of how he came involved in the Lindbergh kidnapping murder case to Assistant District Attorney William F. McGuinness of Brooklyn, N. Y. where Wendel assertedly was beaten until he signed a murder confession. McGuinness, with two aides, interviewed Wendel for about an hour in Mercer county jail, where he is held on a charge of murdering the baby, as a result of the "confession" which he has repudiated.

ETHIOPIANS DEFEATED IN BIG BATTLE

ROME, April 1.—UP—Italy's motorized cavalry today hoisted the Roman tri-color on the northern shores of Lake Tana, which Great Britain regards as her own special domain in Ethiopia.

Simultaneously, Marshal Pietro Badoglio's forces mopped up in the Lake Ashangi region where they met, and crushingly defeated Emperor Haile Selassie's handpicked Imperial Guards, led by the conquering Lion of Judah himself. The battle took place yesterday.

Italian occupation of the Lake Tana area touches vital British interests in Northwestern Ethiopia, as Tana is the head water of the Blue Nile and supplies the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and Egypt with water.

Approximately 7,000 Ethiopians comprising the cream of the Negus' forces, were counted dead on the battlefield today. At least that many more were wounded.

Italian forces participating in the battle totaled 20,000.

The Ethiopians staged a surprise attack at dawn, sneaking up on the Italian positions during a heavy fog around the Lake Ashangi area. They succeeded in rushing the Italian forces east of Mai Ceu, eight miles north of the lake.
